

Texas Association of Chicanos in Higher Education

To the TACHE Community of Educators:

The Texas Association of Chicanos in Higher Education (TACHE) extends our heartfelt condolences to the community, the families, and the friends of the shooting victims of El Paso, Texas and Dayton, Ohio.

The shootings are stark reminders of the dangerous rhetoric that negatively impacts our communities under the guise of domestic terrorism, white nationalism, intolerance, and racial hatred—all originating from the White House. Let us unite in a common voice against these senseless acts of violence and against politicians who seek to divide rather than unite humanity. None of this has a rightful place in our policies nor in our public life.

We therefore call upon all elected officials to use their resources and educators to be proactive in reconciling our differences and repair the broken moral fabric of this nation. The divisive language coming from the White House must cease and the leadership role vested in this administration must be directed toward healing and rebuilding our great nation.

Sincerely,

Dr. Daniel Rodriguez,
President, The Texas Association of Chicano in Higher Education
